Q. "India is said to be pseudo secular".
comment. 200 words.

Ans. India is said to be a pseudo secular country by various critics, according to them India adopts a policy where religion is a state subject unlike other western countries where religion does not influence state's decisions or policies. perhaps the religious sentiments could not be overlooked because of various historical and most importantly political reasons ^{14.5 CM} which were in India before Independence and which came after partition. The Indian politicians have been criticized of having islam-^{26.5 CM} ~~ophob~~ ophobia. They are also criticized of being pseudo secular because of minority appeasement, immense minority appeasement in Indian polity and governance by certain political outfits have given them a very bad image of being pseudosecular.

pseudo secularism has arisen in India due to targeted voting by minority community to attain political leverage which is enjoyed by certain political parties who use them as vote banks. Sometimes these political parties raise these domestic issues on world stage only to meet their petty objectives and defame the image of Indian society giving an incentive to the critics to write about pseudo secularism and defaming India.
