Q.no

India wanted powers to be delegated to not only 1 member but collectively membership.

• If compared to Presidential form of govt., the Parliamentary form of govt. is more stable & of less conflicts.

• In Parliamentary of govt., the Pro & centre of power is on the Parliament.
(CPM)

• In Presidential form of govt., President holds the centre of power, which creates conflicts between executive & legislature. [For example - USA]

Hence, the Parliamentary form of govt. keeps the unity in diversity & creates more stability between the powers of the Pro executive & legislature.

Excellent!
