

Q. Fundamental Rights are not sacrosanct.
Hence Amendable? Comment.

Ans: → Fundamental Rights:

The rights given in constitution, from article 12-35, which are guaranteed by constitutional courts.

→ Are Fundamental Rights are Sacrosanct?

No, Fundamental rights are not sacrosanct, only Basic Structure of Indian Constitution is Sacrosanct.

→ Article-368, empowers parliament to amend Fundamental Rights (or any other part of constitution).

Article - 359.

President can.
Suspend Art-32.
(Soul of Indian Constitution)

↑
Articles, by which, F.R. are not Sacrosanct.

Article - 359.

President can.
Suspend, the right to move to Court.

Article - 33

Parliament can modify application of F.R.

Article - 34

During Martial Law
F.R., and ordinary Jurisdiction falls.

Article - 352

During National Emergency, F.R. are suspended.

Article - 358

F.R. under Art-19
can be suspended
During National Emergency.

Indian constitutional makers visualize,
these ~~to~~ may be situations when F.R.
have to be denied..

That's why, Indian constitution is Flexible, which results in, Non Sacrosanctness of Fundamental Right., But For.

Better
Governance

Better Administration

Tackle Extreme Situations like-war.